

Big D's Ritzy residences

By Vicki Clark

Newlyweds are increasingly choosing an urban lifestyle for their first home. A condominium home set amidst the exciting pace of the downtown social scene ...

In Dallas the concept has been taken to the next level with the Ritz-Carlton Tower residences, a private home with all the luxuries and service of a five-star hotel. Talk about having your cake and eating it too.

One and two-bedroom condos with a full offering of services provided by the Ritz-Carlton staff for maximum comfort and convenience. Whether it is twice-daily housekeeping service and a nightly turndown, or 24-hour in-room dining service, or even a personal chef in your kitchen, the Tower Residences fully-staffed concierge team will arrange it.

A skybridge connects Tower residences and the luxurious Ritz-Carlton, where even more amenities and services await. A fabulous spa and award winning-chef Dean Fearing's new restaurant, to name two.

The one-bedroom floor plans start at just over 1300 sq. ft. Two and three-bedroom plans are as large as 3,400 sq. ft. and many have more than 500 sq. ft. of balcony for entertaining or relaxing. The largest penthouse totals a generous 8,100 sq. ft. of interior and balcony.

Common areas at The Residences include a private dining room, a wine cellar, a library and wine tasting room with its cozy fireplace and swimming pool surrounded by palms and lush flowers.

Some young families and empty-nesters choose to make The Residences their main home, others are owned as a second home by people who are frequently in Dallas for business, family or the arts.

It is an immediate and complete respite from the pace of the city beyond. An attentive doorman relieves you of any packages, while a valet whisks your car to a reserved space. The concierge provides an unequalled focus on anticipating your every need.

Your not dreaming. The Ritz-Carlton Tower Residences are very close to heaven on earth.

For more information, the web, TheResidencesDallas.com.

